Last week I phoned my (1) GP to make an (2) appointment to see her, as I had been feeling a bit under the weather recently.

When I arrived at her (3) surgery, there were only two other people in the (4) waiting-room I gave my name to the (5) receptionist and sat down to await my turn. Fortunately, I didn't have to wait long.

The doctor asked me what was wrong, so I told her my (6) symptoms. She told me to lie down on the (7) couch and gave me an (8) examination.

First, she felt my (9) pulse. Then she took my (10) blood pressure, which was a bit high. Next she took my (11) temperature. It was 37.9. Finally, she listened to my breathing through her (12) stethoscope.

She didn't think there was anything seriously wrong with me.

So she wrote out a (13) prescription for some (14) medicine which she said would make me feel better. She also advised me, as she always did, to stop smoking and reminded me that if I didn't, then one day I might get (15) lung cancer. As usual, I promised to try.
